

TARTEEL QURANIC INSTITUTE

OUR GOAL

Tarteel's overarching mission is to be propagators of the Nūr of the Qur'an within the Australian Muslim community. We strive to illuminate hearts and minds through authentic Qur'anic education, reaching different segments of the community, including students, who represent the makers of the next generation, and teachers, who guide and shape them. Our goal is to support Islamic schools in instilling Islamic morals, values, and knowledge, and in cultivating a deep love and admiration for the Qur'an and the religion of Islam within the hearts of their students.

Professional Training for Quran Staff

Tarteel Institute is proud to offer specialised Qur'anic training programs for Islamic schools, designed to enhance both teacher proficiency at teaching correct recitation of the Qur'an as well as student outcomes.

One-on-one Recitation

Our one-on-one recitation improvement sessions focus on refining teachers' tajwīd application and strengthening their Qur'anic fluency.

Group Professional Development

In addition, our group professional development (PD) workshops provide staff with practical strategies to accurately identify and correct student recitation errors. Through in-depth study of makhārij (points of articulation) and ṣifāt (characteristics of letters)—among other essential tajwīd topics—participants gain a deeper understanding of correct Qur'anic pronunciation. These sessions are carefully tailored to the specific needs of school staff, ensuring practical application and confidence in teaching Qur'an effectively. Tarteel's programs empower educators to deliver lessons with clarity, precision, and passion, enabling students to develop a lifelong connection to the Qur'an grounded in excellence.

Student Workshops and Presentations

Tarteel Institute proudly delivers inspiring workshops and presentations to students across Islamic schools. These sessions aim to strengthen students' connection with the Book of Allah SWT, helping them recognise its timeless guidance, relevance, and wisdom in shaping their character and daily lives. Through interactive and age-appropriate delivery, students explore core themes such as the purpose of life, the importance of the Qur'an as a source of direction and light, Life of the Greatest of Men and Islamic values and ethics.

Our workshops encourage reflection, discussion, and application—allowing students to see how Qur'anic principles can guide them through real-world struggles to lead amazing lives guided by Islam. Each program is facilitated by engaging instructors who create a welcoming environment that instills love for Allah SWT, His words and His Prophet SAW.

These sessions can be tailored to suit various year levels, learning objectives, or school values, ensuring that every visit from Tarteel leaves a lasting spiritual impact.

The Purpose of Life?

This interactive and thought-provoking workshop invites students to explore one of life's most meaningful questions. Designed with visual presentations, stories, and relatable discussions, the session encourages deep reflection on the importance of purpose and direction in life. Students engage through a personal story, explore Qur'anic verses such as "You have not created this in vain", and participate in a guided reflection activity to connect the concept of purpose with their own lives.

The workshop emphasises that every individual is here for a reason, with a unique and valuable role to play — life is not merely for play or distraction. Through examples of inspiring individuals, discussion on perfection in the universe, and practical steps for living with purpose, students gain tools to align their goals with faith and meaning.

Each session concludes with an open Q&A, allowing students to share thoughts and ask questions in a supportive and engaging environment.

His Character was the Quran

Workshop Content

This interactive workshop, "His Manners Were the Qur'an," invites students to explore the character of the Prophet Muhammad ﷺ and how his life reflected the Qur'an in action. Through simple visuals, short stories, and open discussions, students reflect on what good manners, a clean heart, and strong values look like in their daily lives, at school, at home, and online.

Students will hear selected stories from the Seerah that highlight his kindness, patience, mercy, honesty, and respect. They will link these stories to Qur'anic teachings on character, such as speaking gently, forgiving others, and standing up for what is right. Guided activities will help them think about how their actions reflect their values and how they can embody Qur'anic manners with friends, teachers, and family.

The workshop emphasises that true beauty lies in character, and that following the manners of the Prophet ﷺ is a practical way to live the Qur'an today. Students will leave with simple steps they can apply immediately, controlling anger, making others feel safe, and being trustworthy.

Each session ends with an open Q&A, giving students a safe space to share their thoughts and connect the lessons to their own lives.

Quran- the Light for Mankind

Workshop Content

Target Audience: Senior School Students

Duration: Two 45-minute sessions

This workshop presents the Quran as a map for life. Students explore how the Quran guides them the way a map guides a traveller in unfamiliar land.

They learn how its teachings light the path like a torch in a dark forest, giving clarity and direction when life feels confusing.

The presentation explains that the Quran comes from a loving and caring Creator who wants ease, not hardship. Its instructions protect a person from harm, increase peace, and open the door to goodness and barakah. Students see how the Quran changed the lives of role models from the past and helped them become stronger, wiser, and more grounded.

Students take part in a short activity that helps them link Quranic guidance to real situations in their own lives. They also learn simple steps to build a daily connection with the Quran in a practical way.

Each session ends with an open Q&A where students can ask questions and share reflections.

Instructor: Mona Soueid

Goals for Students

Students will be able to

- understand the Quran as a guide for life
- see how its teachings bring clarity and ease.
- recognise how the Quran increases goodness and barakah
- learn from role models whose lives changed through the Quran
- identify small daily steps to build a real connection with the Quran
- see how Quranic guidance applies to real problems
- strengthen motivation to read, reflect, and act on its teachings

Role Models Past and Present

Instructor: Rasha Ahmed

Goals for Students

- Identify key qualities of a positive role model.
 - Distinguish between true influence and fame.
 - Recognise examples of strong role models from Islamic history and today.
 - Reflect on the type of person they want to become.
 - Choose one practical step to show positive character in daily life.

Workshop Content

Target Audience: Senior School Students

Duration: Two 45-minute sessions

This workshop helps students explore the idea of role models, both historical and modern, and how these figures influence the way we think and behave. Through short stories, simple visuals, and guided discussion, students will examine what makes someone a positive role model.

Students will look at examples of individuals known for qualities like courage, honesty, kindness, and resilience, comparing role models from the past with current figures in sports, media, activism, and everyday life. They will also learn to distinguish between being famous and being a good influence, especially in today's social-media-driven world.

Interactive questions will help students reflect on who inspires them, what qualities they value, and what kind of role model they want to be for others. The workshop highlights that real role models are not perfect, they simply show values worth following.

Each session ends with an open Q&A where students can share thoughts and ask questions.
